Seeds of Revolution##

In the mid-18th century, tensions had been brewing between the British Empire and its American colonies. The British government's policies, such as the Stamp Act and the Townshend Acts, imposed taxes and regulations that were deeply resented by the colonists. These policies, combined with growing dissatisfaction with British rule, sowed the seeds of revolution.

The Road to War##

As tensions escalated, radical groups like the Sons of Liberty emerged, advocating for independence from Britain. In 1774, a Continental Congress convened, uniting the colonies in their resistance to British rule. On April 19, 1775, the Battle of Lexington and Concord marked the beginning of the armed conflict.
